Innovating to Increase Inclusive and Safe Housing Opportunities for LGBT Older People

These are unprecedented times. A global pandemic has put our communities at risk, and the eruption of protest against police murders of Black lives is at the center of the nation's collective consciousness. We are living in a time of uncertainty, and we are living in a time of global change. Following the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Rebellion, a rebellion initiated by transgender and other lesbian, gay and bisexual people of color also fighting police violence, we stand at a critical juncture to center the needs of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) communities as we age.

The resilience of LGBT older people is evident in the ways we have led movements for equal rights, created families of choice in the face of systemic discrimination and violence, and created alternative systems of mutual aid and healing in the face of adversity. According to *Opening Doors: An Investigation of Barriers to Senior Housing for Same-Sex Couples*¹, most LGBT older people feel good about the communities they belong to and have at least some social support. We know that one of the most telling predictors of wellness, safety, and a sense of belonging lies in housing—housing that allows all LGBT people to age with dignity in myriad ways.

While movement building has opened opportunities and created greater social acceptance for our communities, LGBT elders are still impacted by decades of oppression, which may disrupt connection to families of origin, living wage earnings, access to wealth accumulation, and opportunities to age in social and economic security. Discrimination also puts LGBT elders at greater risk for health problems, as well as mental illness, addiction, chronic illnesses, social isolation, and premature mortality. LGBT older people face higher rates of poverty and suffer higher rates of housing discrimination than their straight and cisgender counterparts. These challenges are all deeply compounded for LGBT elders of color.

As the LGBT aging population exponentially grows, it is starkly evident that innovative housing solutions to fill these gaps are necessary. Further, the COVID-19 pandemic has also illustrated the exacerbated vulnerabilities existing for LGBT elders of color, transgender elders, and LGBT elders who are living unhoused or with no economic safety net.

To help fill some of these gaps, SAGE launched The National LGBT Elder Housing Initiative in 2015. As part of this Initiative, SAGE set out to develop and provide complete access to a comprehensive collection of innovative housing strategies.

One such strategy is affordable housing developments created explicitly for LGBT older people. Throughout this guide, these will be referred to as “LGBT-affirming” developments. In order to help increase the number of these developments by memorializing lessons learned from those that have already been developed, we researched, wrote and published this guide to help readers understand the overall development process. To provide perspective on individual experiences in developing LGBT-affirming housing projects, we conducted interviews with more than 20 LGBT service providers, developers and property managers around the country representing seven different LGBT-affirming communities. The learnings from these interviews are woven throughout this guide and in the corresponding case studies.

SAGE is committed to highlighting innovation to increase inclusive and safe housing opportunities for LGBT elders—those who paved the way towards a more equitable world for our communities today. We sincerely hope that you find this guide to be of service.

LGBT Older People and Housing Challenges

LGBT elders have faced a lifetime of discrimination and socioeconomic inequities that are further exacerbated by the complexities of aging. Currently estimated at approximately 3 million people, the LGBT older adult population is estimated to grow to 7 million by 2030.²

LGBT older people face several unique issues that have only begun to be addressed by communities across the country. LGBT older people deal with significant health disparities across areas related to physical and mental health, including high blood pressure, elevated cholesterol levels, diabetes, heart disease, HIV/AIDS, and more, as well as with serious mental health concerns. Many mainstream aging providers do not account for the unique realities and needs of LGBT older people, leaving them at risk for isolation, neglect, and discrimination. A recent national survey about LGBT elders in long-term care facilities found that only 22% of respondents felt they could be open about their LGBT identities with facility staff; 89% predicted that staff would discriminate based on their sexual orientations and/or gender identities; and 43% reported instances of mistreatment.³ By utilizing innovative approaches to couple LGBT-affirming housing with culturally competent services, communities such as those in Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Diego, and San Francisco, California; Minneapolis, Minnesota; Chicago, Illinois; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and New York, New York, are paving a new aging path for LGBT older people.

LGBT Older People and Poverty

The cumulative impact of discrimination over a lifetime is that LGBT older people are at increased risk for poverty. Nearly one-third of LGBT elders ages 65 and older live at or below 200% of the federal poverty level, compared to a quarter of non-LGBT older people. This percentage rises to 40% of LGBT older people 80 and older. Bisexuals 65 and older have shocking poverty rates: 47% of bisexual older men and 48% of bisexual women live at or below 200% of the federal poverty level. In addition, transgender elders have similar rates to bisexual older people. One study found that 48% of transgender older people live at or below 200% of the federal poverty level.⁶

LGBT older people face housing discrimination at an alarming rate according to research done by the Equal Rights Center. “200 tests across 10 states were conducted to measure the extent of adverse, differential treatment against a senior seeking housing for oneself and a same-sex partner. In 96 of the 200 tests conducted (48%), the LGB tester with a same-sex spouse experienced at least one type of adverse, differential treatment when compared to the heterosexual tester with an opposite-sex spouse.”⁴

Further, at least 23% of transgender older people have faced some form of housing discrimination. “More than one-quarter (26%) of those who experienced homelessness in the past year avoided staying in a shelter because they feared being mistreated as a transgender person.”⁵ LGBT elders also face increased rates of poverty.

Additionally, The Homeless Research Institute of the National Alliance to End Homelessness estimated that the older adult homeless population is projected to rise from 44,000 in 2010 to as many as 95,000 by 2050.⁷ The Movement Advancement Project echoes a similar sentiment in a recent report where they identified that unstable housing caused by lower incomes and discrimination often leave LGBT people spending time in emergency shelters.⁸

Economic and social conditions affect health and are the underlying contributing factors of health inequities. One of the key social determinants of health is housing.

“Access to safe, quality, affordable housing—and the supports necessary to maintain that housing—constitute one of the most basic and powerful social determinants of health. In particular, for individuals and families trapped in a cycle of crisis and housing instability due to extreme poverty, trauma, violence, mental illness, addiction or other chronic health conditions, housing can entirely dictate their health and health trajectory.”⁹

For vulnerable populations like elders and those with chronic health conditions or compromised immune systems, housing instability only exacerbates existing vulnerabilities.

Despite its importance, affordable housing is in short supply. In addition, while the competition for affordable housing continues to grow dramatically, the potential for mainstream affordable housing programs and services funding targeted to older people could face dramatic reductions or limitations in the coming years. While numerous studies have been conducted on the efficacy of various housing interventions for vulnerable populations, from developing supportive housing models to aging in place strategies, little time, energy or capital has been invested in dissecting the components of how these models can or should be nuanced to effectively address the needs of LGBT older people.

SAGE's National LGBT Elder Housing Initiative

In 2015, SAGE launched The National LGBT Elder Housing Initiative in response to a growing body of research highlighting the housing needs of LGBT older people.

The Initiative seeks to engage consumers, providers, and policymakers to increase access to and create understanding and welcoming housing environments for LGBT older people. More specifically, it follows a multi-pronged approach to create a continuum of housing resources available to LGBT elders through the following:

1 Building LGBT-affirming older adult housing in select cities and providing capacity building resources to communities to replicate best practices.

Building capacity of organizations across the country in developing LGBT- and age-affirming developments is of paramount importance to combat the entrenched discrimination experienced by the LGBT community. To meet this need, SAGE is engaging with organizations working with members of the development community to help broker new relationships with LGBT service providers. Through this guide, SAGE is also engaging these groups to document lessons learned and best practices from existing LGBT-affirming elder housing that can inform replication strategies in other parts of the country. SAGE's goal is to serve as a catalyst for increased development through elevating national discussions around this innovative approach to serving our LGBT elders.

Michael Adams (CEO, SAGE) with NYC Council Member Ritchie Torres and SAGE participants at housing announcement press conference.

In addition, SAGE has launched two of its own LGBT-affirming housing communities. SAGE is the service provider in the Crotona Senior Residences (82 units) in the Bronx and Stonewall House (145 units) in Brooklyn. Stonewall House was completed in 2019, and Crotona Senior Residences was completed in 2020.

2 Training mainstream elder housing providers in fair and welcoming treatment of LGBT older people through cultural competency training.

SAGE has developed robust LGBT aging training curricula for housing providers.

Through SAGE's training project, SAGECare, providers can equip their staff with the tools necessary to properly serve LGBT older people. SAGECare also offers a credential for agencies that reach a certain percentage of staff trained. To learn more about SAGECare trainings visit www.sageusa.care.

3 Changing public policy to end housing discrimination against LGBT older people and expand federal support to LGBT-affirming elder housing. SAGE is actively involved in supporting the Equality Act, which would provide equal rights protections for LGBT people in employment and housing. In addition, SAGE continues to defend the Equal Access Rule promulgated by HUD in 2014 that prohibits any housing program receiving federal funding from discriminating based on sexual orientation or gender identity.

4 Equipping LGBT older people with the resources they need to find—and advocate for—LGBT-affirming housing. SAGE has developed “Know Your Rights” and other fair housing materials for LGBT older people to educate both consumers and providers around the tenets of fair housing laws and how to advocate for themselves and others. In addition, SAGE has developed Welcome Home, the LGBT housing website portal that offers consumer education materials to assist LGBT older people, including aging in place and home modification best practices, as well as fair housing protections information: www.sageusa.org/lgbthousing.

5 Expanding services (Aging in Place, Care Coordination, Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities, Co-housing) that support LGBT older people facing housing challenges. Not everyone prefers, or is able, to move to a new community as they age, and a large majority of those responding to various surveys indicate they would like to age in their existing homes and communities. In order to do so, SAGE is providing resources related to many different types of “aging in place” models. In 2019, the NHI also launched an annual LGBT elder housing symposium, helping to build the capacity of the mainstream housing sector and community advocates to understand the housing challenges facing LGBT older adults, and providing space to devise innovative solutions. Introduction to LGBT-Affirming Affordable Elder Housing Developments

One housing intervention for LGBT older people is the creation of LGBT-affirming elder housing. While available to anyone meeting the housing community's criteria, regardless of sexual orientation and gender identity, these affordable developments are designed specifically to meet the needs of LGBT older people.

Federal, state, and local laws prohibit housing discrimination on the basis of sex. Restricting renting or selling to only LGBT people can violate fair housing laws. It is critical that communities not discriminate on those, or other bases. Instead, the goal is to create inclusive communities where any sexual orientation and gender identity is embraced, and diversity is celebrated. These communities comply with fair housing laws while still focusing on creating LGBT-affirming and inclusive environments with LGBT culturally competent staff and LGBT-focused programming.

This guide highlights ten such operational projects in the U.S.—in Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Francisco, Chicago, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, and New York City—with at least a dozen others in the development process.

Ultimately, the financial tools and products used to create LGBT-affirming developments are no different from those utilized in producing traditional affordable multi-family developments. The key ingredient that makes these projects unique are the services and engagement strategies of residents to create a welcoming environment and a sense of community. There are general principles any affordable development will share:

- Ensuring affordability for a segment of its tenants by utilizing Low Income Housing Tax Credits for its development. No less than 20% of all units must be accessible to those at 50% and below Area Median Income (AMI) or 40% of units at 60% of Area Median Income.
- Embracing special needs populations (examples include veterans, elders or those living with HIV/AIDS) and ensuring that the service linkages needed for any potential tenants are in place through partnerships with community agencies.
- Income restrictions on a portion of units or operating subsidies to assist in making monthly rents more affordable for lower income residents through the use of federal programs such as Project Based Section 8 Housing Choice Vouchers or HOPWA (Persons living with HIV/AIDS) or locally developed housing subsidy programs (depending on location).
- Space co-located on site for the service needs of its tenants. This could be as basic as limited case management to more intensive service needs such as a primary healthcare clinic. Exploration of funding options such as Medicaid, Medicare, or partnering with an organization that has a designation as a Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC) are all ways to ensure at least a portion of these service costs could be covered for tenants.

- Accessibility to transportation, wellness programming, and other community amenities to ensure a thriving community engagement for its tenants.

Before elaborating on the various stages of the development process or highlighting innovative project specifics, it is wise to have an understanding of the key financing mechanisms that make creating affordable housing possible. The Low Income Housing Tax Credit Program (LIHTC) was created by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and since has become one of the primary means of directing private capital toward the development and preservation of affordable rental housing for low-income households.

The LIHTC program is funded by the U.S. Treasury Department and is overseen by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). The LIHTC program is administered through each state's housing finance administrative agency. Tax credits are awarded to eligible participants annually by these state agencies through a competitive process. Awardees receive the benefit of being able to offset a portion of their federal tax liability in exchange for the production or preservation of affordable rental housing.

The value associated with the tax credits lies within the ability of the program to create new affordable housing resources for the communities it is building. Developments built using LIHTC create deeper affordability for residents by requiring income restrictions for a portion of the overall units. This in turn creates additional affordable housing stock for the community in which the development resides. Projects funded through the LIHTC program are required to meet the particular project's low-income requirements for a 15-year initial "compliance period" and a subsequent 15-year "extended-use period." Property managers of these developments are required to keep detailed records of tenant financial eligibility as the IRS monitors the program closely. Often, developers will also work with local governments and housing authorities to attach project-based operating subsidies, also known as the Project Based Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher Program to guarantee even deeper affordability for potential tenants, ideally paying no more than 30% of their monthly income towards rent. The ultimate benefits of the program for local communities include:

- Maximizing the number of affordable units added to the state's housing supply;
- Ensuring that the state's affordable housing supply is well maintained and operated, serving as an asset to the communities in which affordable housing is constructed and operated; and,
- Preventing losses in the state's supply of affordable housing.

Overview of Low Income Housing Tax Credits

The LIHTC program accounts for approximately 90% of all affordable rental housing created in the U.S. today. Most projects may have anywhere between 40% and 60% of their total development costs covered through tax credit equity, depending on the area of the country in which it is being developed. As the maximum rent that can be charged is based upon the Area Median Income (AMI), LIHTC housing remains unaffordable to many low-income (<30% AMI) renters. Guarantees of affordability are ensured through stipulations of one of the following in any project awarded credits:

- At least 20% or more of the residential units in the development are both rent restricted and occupied by individuals whose income is 50% or less than the area median gross income.
- At least 40% or more of the residential units in the development are both rent restricted and occupied by individuals whose income is 60% or less than the area median gross income.

The Five Phases of Development

While many community-based organizations express interest in building LGBT-affirming affordable elder housing, there are very few developments, largely because the process is arduous, expensive, and extremely complicated. Here is a high-level summary of the various stages in the development process, with examples drawn from the current LGBT-affirming communities that are completed or in development.

PREDEVELOPMENT CONCEPT

PHASE 1

The concept phase of development, often referred to as “predevelopment,” is when the project sponsor—the company in charge of developing the project—will begin to assemble its development team. The team will consist of a developer, owner, property manager and service provider. One entity can play all of these roles, or separate organizations can assume one of these roles where they have a specific expertise.

🔗 In New York City, SAGE has collaborated with HELP USA, an experienced non-profit housing developer, for its Crotona Senior Residences project in the Bronx; and BFC Partners, an experienced developer for SAGE’s Stonewall House in Brooklyn.

pro forma determines the necessary operating subsidies and/or income levels of tenants and rents needed to make the project “cash flow” or “pencil out”—slang terms used to mean the rough analysis of the financial viability of an investment. This is also the phase in which the developer assesses the true capital needs for the building and identifies sources of “gap” financing to assist with any assumptions they may not have factored in during the original design of the concept in phase one of development. Some LGBT projects often have to recalibrate assumptions to meet situational challenges.

FEASIBILITY ANALYSIS

In this phase of development, the developer begins to test assumptions for the project. For example, an “operating pro forma” is developed to test assumptions around monthly expenses for the building. The operating

🔗 In Philadelphia, dmhFund and Pennrose Development originally had planned to site the John C. Anderson apartments directly next to the William Way LGBT Center. However, due to remediation concerns and the opportunity to optimize a vacant parking lot nearby, the plans were changed and the project was sited adjacent to its originally identified site. As Mark Segal with dmhFund in Philadelphia noted, “You must be flexible and recognize that the project will evolve over time and you must be open to that to be successful.”

FINANCING

The financing stage is a critical juncture in the project because this is when developers are actively applying for capital funding and identifying operating subsidies. It is common for projects to stall during this phase of development. It takes endurance in many cases to secure the sometimes multiple layers of funding sources needed to build a development. Given that development can cost as much as $250,000 per unit, it is common for developments to cost millions of dollars.

🔗 In Minneapolis, Spirit on Lake Apartments is a prime example of how endurance and resilience can prove a key to success. Spirit on Lake spent four years assembling necessary financing to develop its building. This is not unusual due to the extremely competitive nature of the Low Income Housing Tax Credit Program and the funding environment in which affordable housing developers operate.

CONSTRUCTION

During construction, one can physically see the development being built. This process typically takes approximately 18 to 24 months. It is during this development phase that the property manager and service provider collaborate on supportive services plans, property management plans, and staffing structures. Approximately seven months prior to “lease-up” (see next section), the property manager will begin the affirmative marketing plan of the development and will provide information sessions to prospective tenants. The need for close collaboration from this point forward between the property manager and service provider is critical to ensure necessary property management and service coordination.

PHASE 3

🔗 In Los Angeles, residents of Triangle Square have benefited from its close proximity to the Hollywood Redevelopment District, a 30-year Tax Increment Financing project that has produced one of LA’s most popular entertainment districts.

LEASE-UP AND OPERATION

The last phase of development is the lease-up and operations phase. Lease-up and operations of the building occur upon completion of construction. However, preparation for this phase starts well before—in the late feasibility or during the construction phase. If the project will utilize operating subsidies, a project team may be working with a local housing authority to secure Project Based Section 8 Housing Choice Vouchers for units in the development to guarantee deeper affordability for residents. Typically, housing authorities have very long waiting lists. It is not uncommon to have thousands of prospective applicants waiting to apply for any new affordable housing development constructed. However, there are instances where communities have found innovative strategies and compromise around how to handle waiting-list issues.

🔗 In Chicago, Heartland Alliance and the Center on Halsted (COH) were successful in working closely with the Chicago Housing Authority to develop its waiting list and site based lottery. Applicants were selected via random lottery for the development. Emphasis was placed on educating Center on Halsted clients about the application process through community application workshops held onsite at COH. This was to ensure that the housing authority was able to serve the backlog of individuals on their extensive waiting list and that the project sponsors could also ensure at least a portion of residents were clients potentially already receiving services from them.

Town Hall Apartments

CHICAGO

BACKGROUND

The Center on Halsted opened its new building in 2007 and its Chief Executive Officer Tico Valle had a vision of how the Center could provide housing for aging LGBT older people in a vacant, neighboring building that had been a local police station. The Center engaged Heartland Alliance, a local non-profit housing developer and supportive housing provider to begin discussions about the project. Heartland Alliance opened its doors in 1888, pioneered, in part, by Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and one of Chicago's first leaders in the movement to end poverty. Over the past 25 years Heartland Alliance has developed more than 1,600 units of housing and manages 895 units.

PROJECT SNAPSHOT

- Adaptive reuse and rehabilitation of the historic Town Hall police station in Lakeview neighborhood of Chicago, Illinois, with adjoining new construction
- Total of 79 units (39 studios and 40 one-bedroom units) of affordable housing for seniors (LGBT-friendly) with ground floor community and commercial space
- At least 60% of the buildings units presently occupied by LGBT residents
- Utilized 9% Low Income Housing Tax Credits
- LEED Silver certified

Heartland Alliance had already demonstrated its dedication to the issue with its 2005 study of housing needs of LGBT people in Chicago. Discussion began in earnest with the City of Chicago in 2010, and there was a tremendous amount of political and community support. Mayor Daley was a huge supporter of the project, and its location in the Lakeview neighborhood (also known as “Boystown”) only reiterated the community support of the idea.

Heartland Alliance conducted local community charrettes to get community input for the process and assess community needs. The project utilized Low Income Housing Tax Credits and coupled with the building having 100% Project Based Section 8 to ensure deep affordability for residents. The “lease-up” process was successful in that the Center and the Chicago Housing Authority worked closely together to ensure that Center on Halsted’s clients were aware of the development and how to apply for the available units. The Chicago Housing Authority’s compliance department helped structure a site based waiting list lottery, thereby ensuring diversity for the building. The project opened in 2014 and has only seen six units turn over—four of which were occupied by older residents who passed away due to illness. There is also a waiting list of more than 475 applicants.

Detailed interviews with staff the revealed keys to success that include:

- Partnering with a supportive housing provider with deep knowledge of wraparound services and property management coordination
- A property manager who is focused on keeping tenants housed, which means helping residents work through late rent payments when needed versus moving straight to eviction

AMENITIES & OTHER UNIQUE FEATURES

- Second floor terrace
- Secure, keycard entry
- Emergency call system
- Onsite parking
- Fitness room
- Designated laundry on each floor

- A building design focused on creating opportunities for community engagement
- A “harassment addendum” to the lease stipulating harassment of any resident is grounds for eviction
- Recognizing the service needs of the tenants are significant and planning for those needs by recognizing they will grow in the future as residents age.

Owner: Heartland Housing and Center on Halsted

Property Manager: Heartland Housing

Service Provider: Center on Halsted

Tenant Profile: Tenants must be 55 and older and pay no more than 30% of their monthly income on rent. A total of 35 units are for those at 50% and below of Area Median Income, 40 units are for those at 60% and below of Area Median Income, and four units are for those at 80% and below Area Median Income.

Service Provider Mission: The Center on Halsted is the Midwest’s most comprehensive community center dedicated to advancing community and securing the health and well-being of the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer people of Chicago. More than 1,400 community members visit the Center every day, located in the heart of Chicago's Lakeview Neighborhood.

Service Approach: Since the launch of its first program for seniors in 1997, the Center on Halsted (COH) is recognized as a national leader in development of LGBTQ-affirming, skills-enhancement, and socialization programs for its elders to combat the many challenges faced by this generation. The majority of COH's programming is held in its newly expanded and renovated 5,500 square foot Center on Addison, located on the first floor of Town Hall Apartments and adjacent to Center on Halsted. Center on Addison offers a robust calendar of programs for older people for both Town Hall residents as well as community-based seniors. Each week, more than 150 elders visit Center on Addison to attend workshops, take classes, share a meal, or make new friends.

At Center on Halsted, one full-time, onsite case manager funded through the Illinois Department of Supportive Housing checks in with each resident no less than twice a month. Additional programming and services are funded through the Center on Halsted and provide linkages to behavioral health and primary health related services nearby. (Residents indicated they would prefer not to have those services located onsite.) Town Hall Apartments has a number of resident-led committees, including various social groups, décor bulletin board committee, gardening committee, and newsletter committee. Center on Halsted Senior Services offers a strong employment program, which has helped some residents create a stronger level of self-sufficiency. It offers a variety of employment programs and services to help older people re-enter the workforce. Several Town Hall residents are enrolled in the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP) at the Center on Halsted where they receive on the job training and work 20 hours per week.

Triangle Square Apartments

LOS ANGELES

BACKGROUND

This 104-unit building of one and two bedroom units opened in 2007. Triangle Square is the very first LGBT-affirming affordable development in the United States. The project, which was originally started by the Grammy Foundation as an older adult housing building for Grammy Foundation designated members, changed during the predevelopment process to an LGBT-affirming development. The Gay and Lesbian Elder Housing Corporation (no longer operating the building) partnered with McCormick Barron Salazar to develop and operate the building until 2014 when a new partner, Encore Housing, took over GLEHC's ownership stake in the limited partnership. McCormick Barron Salazar is one of the nation's leading for-profit developers. Since 1973, the firm has been an innovator in community development and urban revitalization in 42 cities, having built more than 19,500 high-quality homes for families, children, older people, and veterans.

PROJECT SNAPSHOT

- Completed in 2007
- 104 units (96 one-bedroom and 8 two-bedroom)
- Approximately 70-80% of units are residents who are LGBT
- Twenty percent of units at 60% or below AMI
- 35 units are set aside for people living with HIV/AIDS through the Housing Opportunities for People with HIV/AIDS (HOPWA), homeless or at risk of being homeless—33.65% overall
- About 1/3 of units (43) have Section 8
- Developed using 9% Low Income Housing Tax Credits as well as funding through the California Redevelopment Authority (no longer in existence)

CASE STUDY

The Los Angeles LGBT Center has been deeply involved as the service provider since the building's inception. The building had significant private support as well as Low Income Tax Credit equity and a significant investment from the now defunct California Community Redevelopment Authority. Private donations made up at least $1 million of the capital expenditures. In addition, some of the amenities often unavailable to affordable housing, such as the swimming pool in the courtyard, laundry on each floor, and complimentary Internet services were all provided via private donations. The community spaces were furnished through monetary donations of board members.

Total Development Costs: $21.5 million

Owner: Encore Housing/McCormack Baron Salazar (Sunrise Corporation)

Developer: McCormack Baron Salazar

Property Manager: McCormack Baron Salazar

Service Provider: Los Angeles LGBT Center

Tenant Profile: All residents must be 62 and older; 70-75% of residents are currently LGBT and most of the clients receive their services through the Los Angeles LGBT Center

Service Provider Mission: Since 1969, the Los Angeles LGBT Center has cared for, championed, and celebrated LGBT individuals and families in Los Angeles and beyond. The Center's nearly 800 employees provide services and programs that span four broad categories: Health, Social Services and Housing, Culture and Education, Leadership, and Advocacy. Each month, the Center welcomes more than 50,000 visits (more than half a million each year) from youth and adults who represent the full diversity of the LGBT community. All of the Center's services, which are available to everyone, are free or low-cost.

Service Approach: Supportive services are provided both onsite as well as in nearby program offices by the Center's Senior Services. In addition, the Center's large and growing services help meet many of the life-sustaining needs of LGBT people over the age of 50 throughout the community, including food and case management, while providing an array of life- and health-enriching programs and activities that also help end the isolation so many experience when aging.

General funding support of all services for Triangle Square is through the Los Angeles LGBT Center. These services include things like behavioral health, legal assistance and primary healthcare, including access to offsite services provided by community partners. Many of the services are funded through philanthropic grants. The Center, which is a Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC) and provides primary healthcare services to Center clients, also has the Jeffrey Goodman Special Care Clinic. The value of having linkages to an FQHC is that at least some of the services tenants receive through the FQHC are in many cases largely Medicaid reimbursable. There are three full time staff at Triangle Square, consisting of one case manager and two resident service coordinators. The Center coordinates hospice and mental health services for tenants when needed.

Spirit on Lake Apartments

MINNEAPOLIS

BACKGROUND

Since 2001, Barbara Satin, a transgender activist and Assistant Faith Work Director for the National LGBTQ Task Force, and other members of the Spirit of The Lakes United Church of Christ had a vision for a safe, welcoming environment for all people irrespective of their gender identity, sexual orientation, faith, or cultural background—but with particular emphasis on LGBT elders. The catalyzing moment to create such a community came after a transgender woman had a stroke, and for fear of mistreatment was forced to outwardly conform to a male gender identity. Ms. Satin and two other members of the congregation founded GLBT Generations to better educate the Minneapolis/St. Paul communities about LGBT aging issues and focus on the major need for safe, welcoming housing. The church owned its small church, a former industrial garage, as well as a large parking lot making up almost an entire city block. In 2005, the congregation began discussions with a local non-profit developer they met when the developer, Powderhorn Residence Group, had approached the church about using its sanctuary for a neighborhood meeting. That started a partnership that would span the next 10 years in bringing their vision to fruition. The Powderhorn Residence Group (PRG) has been in existence since 1976. A small-but-nimble community based non-profit developer, PRG not only works in multi-family development but also in foreclosure prevention, first-time homeowner education, and homeowner financial counseling in the Minneapolis/St. Paul metropolitan area.

Despite the collaborative partnership created, the path toward development was not always smooth. Originally envisioned as a co-operative housing complex, the 2007 recession and subsequent real estate market crash made the process costly and unrealistic. Therefore, in 2010, the partners regrouped and added some additional development expertise with Everwood Development as a key partner to alter the focus to one of affordable rental housing. It took nearly four years to assemble the project financing package. Ms. Satin, representing the LGBT community, and the staffs of PRG and Everwood Development spent countless hours working with neighborhood, city, county, and state leaders to educate them on the issues facing LGBT older people and how this development could help meet an important

Clare Housing

Tenant Profile: There are no age restrictions on residents of the building; however, 65% of residents are LGBT older people with the remaining 35% of residents being made up largely of East African immigrant families. There are 17 two-bedroom units with some families with children residing in those units. This has helped also foster intergenerational relationships between residents.

CASE STUDY

The building has a mix of distinct cultural backgrounds and religious differences between Christian and Muslim populations. The surrounding neighborhood is culturally diverse and tenants and community residents alike have embraced the differences in culture. Premier Management has facilitated community-building opportunities with speakers on LGBT issues as well as on the Muslim faith. The LGBT residents also encourage potlucks and opportunities for residents to share their cultural backgrounds. Quatrefoil, the LGBT community library for the Twin Cities metro area, was invited to be the occupant of the first floor commercial space. (This was originally designated for the church, which had to move before construction began.) The residents of Spirit on Lake and the members of Quatrefoil share access to the large lounge area and use it for community celebrations and educational programs.

Service Provider Mission: Founded in 1987, Clare Housing has created an enduring legacy of providing affordable, supportive housing, and compassionate care for people living with and affected by HIV and AIDS. Clare Housing uses a person-focused program, which is designed to bring together strategies of harm reduction, treatment, and care to enhance quality of life and reduce new infections in our community.

Service Approach: Supportive services are provided through Clare Housing to five of the units in the building that have project-based subsidies for formerly homeless individuals. Clare Housing provides the wraparound supportive services to those five tenants. There are no other specifically funded services onsite for residents. Many residents opt to obtain supportive services through local LGBT organizations, such as OutFront Minnesota, the Aliveness Project, and Rainbow Health Initiative.

Although Premier Management's staff has assisted tenants in getting connected to local services, such as Meals on Wheels, it is not a formalized part of its resident services nor is it directly funded to provide additional support onsite. The majority of group activities and events are led by the building occupants. The property management staff is quick to point to the residents' desire to engage and foster community through a welcoming, open environment. In interviews, staff pointed to the residents as the primary key to the project's success. While property management acknowledges that residents will most likely need graduated services in the future, they have seen very little turn over thus far with less than a 2% vacancy rate. When vacancies do arise, Premier Management notes that word of mouth among existing tenants usually backfills available units immediately.

Crotona Senior Residences

THE BRONX, NEW YORK CITY

BACKGROUND

SAGE's mission is to improve the lives of LGBT older people through a combination of direct services, advocacy, and training. SAGE has not historically been a direct housing provider. However, in 2014, amidst SAGE constituents' growing concerns related to their housing vulnerability, and an Equal Rights Center report that 48% of same-sex older adult couples faced some form of housing discrimination, SAGE launched its National LGBT Elder Housing Initiative and made a decision to catalyze LGBT-affirming affordable elder housing in

New York City. SAGE engaged with HELP USA to collaborate on creating one of the first two LGBT-affirming developments for older people in New York City.

HELP USA has been a housing innovator since its founder, Andrew Cuomo, opened its first residence in 1986. Under his leadership, HELP USA created a supportive housing model, packaging services with shelter and opening HELP 1 for homeless families in Brooklyn. Since its founding, HELP USA has combined innovation with management excellence, becoming a national leader in both homeless prevention and a developer of permanent supportive housing for special needs populations. HELP USA currently operates 52 different programs and residences across five states.

SAGE has partnered with HELP USA to build an LGBT-affirming elder affordable housing development in the Bronx, located next to Crotona Park, a New York City gem and favorite of naturalists with its 3.3-acre lake and 28 species of trees. The building will contain 84 studio and one-bedroom apartments for low-income elders and will include energy-efficient construction, a rooftop terrace, and community gardens. The focal point will be a full-service, 6,000-square-foot ground-floor SAGE Center that will provide health and cultural programs, meal service, and a cyber-center—all built on SAGE's holistic Whole Person Wellness model.

Housing Choice Vouchers—elder housing 62 and older—30% set aside for formerly homeless

Service Provider Mission: SAGE is the country's largest and oldest organization dedicated to improving the lives of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender older people. Founded in 1978 and headquartered in New York City, SAGE is a national organization that offers supportive services and consumer resources to LGBT older people and their caregivers, advocates for public policy changes that address the needs of older LGBT people, provides education and technical assistance for aging providers and LGBT organizations through its National Resource Center on LGBT Aging, and cultural competence training through SAGECare. Headquartered in New York City, with staff located across the country, SAGE coordinates a growing network of affiliates across the country, SAGE also coordinates a growing network of affiliates in the United States.

Service Approach: Supportive services will be provided onsite through SAGE Center staff. The SAGE Center model is based on a Whole-Person Wellness Model—the bedrock of service provision at all SAGE Center locations. As the national leader in LGBT aging issues with 40 years of experience, SAGE is uniquely qualified to guide the breadth of inclusive senior services planned for community use throughout this proposed 84-unit building. To that end, the centerpiece of the project will be a ground-floor SAGE Center, managed and staffed by SAGE, open to all people older than 60 who live in the building or in the greater community. Annually the SAGE Centers provide roughly 8,000 hours of programming and almost 40,000 congregate hot meals to thousands of LGBT older people throughout New York City. Roughly 100 meals and 7 to 8 hours of programming will be provided to 300+ older people in the building and surrounding neighborhood daily.

The SAGE Center at Crotona will follow SAGE's highly successful model used in the creation of the innovative SAGE Center Midtown, founded in 2012 in Chelsea and subsequently expanded to Harlem, the Bronx, Staten Island, and Brooklyn in 2014. Wellness is an indispensable framework for understanding and serving the wants and needs of older LGBT people seeking to age actively in their community. The Whole-Person Wellness Model is comprised of eight wellness domains, which overlap and coordinate to provide rich environments for living: social, physical, environmental, intellectual, emotional, vocational/occupational, and spiritual.

In order to achieve optimal wellness, one must have a balance within each domain. Toward this end of optimal wellness while aging, the SAGE Center will offer tenants and community members comprehensive, on-site programming and social engagement opportunities. Additional services will include meal services in a congregate setting; case management and social service support; engagement in culturally relevant health and wellness seminars; exercise and fitness programs; recreational activities that diminish social isolation; employment assistance, vocational training and volunteer opportunities; and a range of cultural and educational programs including art, writing, financial literacy, and computer skills.

The SAGE Center will also provide comprehensive housing stability services for all building tenants, including crisis intervention, ongoing case management, information and referral services, financial and household management, entitlement assistance, and coordination of in-home services and medical care as appropriate.

to collaborate on creating one of the first two LGBT-affirming developments for older people in New York City.

In 2014, a Request for Proposals was released by the New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) requesting bids to redevelop an existing public housing site (Ingersoll) in the Fort Greene neighborhood of Brooklyn. Don Capoccia, managing principal and founder of NYC's BFC Partners, engaged with SAGE to submit a bid for the redevelopment of an existing public housing development in Brooklyn, New York, as part of HUD's Rental Assistance Demonstration (RAD) Program. The Rental Assistance Demonstration under which this redevelopment program has been launched was created in order to give public housing authorities a powerful tool to preserve and improve public housing properties and to address the national $26-billion-dollar backlog of deferred maintenance. In RAD, units move to a Project Based Section 8 platform with a long-term contract that, by law, must be renewed by the federal government. This ensures that the units remain permanently affordable to low-income households. As this was one of the first RAD projects in New York City, SAGE engaged with the NYCHA Ingersoll Tenant Union to assess the needs and wishes of the surrounding community.

BFC Partners contracted with SAGE to serve as the on-site service provider, with the guarantee of a first floor, 7,000-square-foot SAGE Center. Stonewall House opened in 2019.

As the national leader in LGBT aging issues with 40 years of experience, SAGE is uniquely qualified to guide the breadth of inclusive senior services planned for community use throughout this proposed 84-unit building. To that end, the centerpiece of the project is a ground floor SAGE Center, managed and staffed by SAGE, open to all people older than 60 who live in the building or in the greater community. Annually the SAGE Centers provide roughly 8,000 hours of programming and almost 40,000 congregate, hot meals to thousands of LGBT older people throughout New York City. Roughly 100 meals and 7 to 8 hours of programming will be provided to more than 300 older people in the building and surrounding neighborhood daily.

The SAGE Center at Stonewall House follows SAGE's highly successful model used in the creation of the innovative SAGE Center Midtown, founded in 2012 in Chelsea and subsequently expanded to Harlem, the Bronx, Staten Island, and Brooklyn in 2014. Wellness is an indispensable framework for understanding and serving the wants and needs of older LGBT people seeking to age actively in their community. The Whole-Person Wellness Model is comprised of eight wellness domains, which overlap and coordinate to provide rich environments for living: social, physical, environmental, intellectual, emotional, vocational/occupational, and spiritual.

In order to achieve optimal wellness, one must have a balance within each domain. Toward this end of optimal wellness while aging, the SAGE Center offers tenants and community members comprehensive, on-site programming and social engagement opportunities. Additional services includes meal services in a congregate setting; case management and social service support; engagement in culturally relevant health and wellness seminars; exercise and fitness programs; recreational activities that diminish social isolation; employment assistance, vocational training, and volunteer opportunities; and a range of cultural and educational programs including art, writing, financial literacy, and computer skills.

AMENITIES & OTHER UNIQUE FEATURES

- First-floor SAGE Center provides hot meals, a computer training "cyber center," and 8 daily hours of programs in fitness, arts and culture, and more
- Open lobby concept
- Garden terrace
- Located directly across from historic Fort Greene Park
- Walking distance to public transportation, pharmacies, grocery stores and public parks
- The development will be certified under the Enterprise Green Communities program
- The residential units incorporates the American Society of Interior Designers' Design for Aging Council's recommendations, to create units that are conducive to safe and active aging. Therefore, all units feature walk-in showers that can easily accommodate wheelchairs. Smaller details, like grab bars, slip-resistant floors, paddle handles on faucets, and layouts that allow for easy wheelchair movement are employed throughout

The SAGE Center also provides comprehensive housing stability services for all building tenants, including crisis intervention, ongoing case management, information and referral services, financial and household management, entitlement assistance, and coordination of in-home services and medical care as appropriate.

John C. Anderson Apartments

PHILADELPHIA

BACKGROUND

The John C. Anderson Apartments opened in January of 2014. However, the work that led to its fruition really began quite earlier. Mark Segal, President of Dr. Magnus Hirschfeld Fund (dmhFund) and longtime LGBT advocate, began studying the needs of local LGBT seniors in 1998. In 2009, dmhFund partnered with Philadelphia Health Management Corporation to conduct a study of LGBT older people in Philadelphia. They found that the predominant issue cited by respondents was a need for safe, affordable, LGBT-affirming housing. In 2010, Segal approached the CEO of Pennrose Properties, LLC, a Philadelphia-based developer of affordable, market rate, and mixed-income housing. Founded in 1971, Pennrose has developed more than 16,000 housing units, representing more than $3 billion in total development activity. Pennrose's portfolio includes more than 220 distinct developments in 14 states plus the District of Columbia.

The partnership that began in 2010 was the start of a strong collaboration where dmhFund cultivated support from local community groups by utilizing focus groups and listening sessions for local residents as well as advocating for the project with local and state political leaders. Pennrose took the lead on the Low Income Housing Tax Credit application, identifying other sources of financing, zoning, and all other aspects of development and project management.

The project broke ground in November 2012 and opened a little more than a year later. Segal recounted that his advice to anyone undertaking a similar project would be "to be a willing student" and to recognize that any development will evolve and change throughout the process so as not to be wedded to the exact original vision of a project. In addition, understanding that there are so many moving pieces to the process and identifying talented partners with expertise and a shared mission are instrumental to success. This was true for John C. Anderson, as the original vision was to have the William Way LGBT Center onsite. Due to a variety of outside factors, that was not possible. John C. Anderson was, however, sited in the former space of a large parking structure near the William Way LGBT Community Center, which still provides close proximity for service provision.

AMENITIES & OTHER UNIQUE FEATURES

low income (less than $27,750/year), and 27 units for low income (less than $33,300/year). These income levels are subject to annual adjustments according to HUD's published schedule of county Area Median Incomes.

Service Provider Mission: The William Way LGBT Community Center encourages, supports, and advocates for the well-being and acceptance of sexual and gender minorities in the Greater Philadelphia region through service, recreational, educational, and cultural programming. William Way started serving LGBT older people more than 42 years ago.

Service Approach: Supportive Services are subcontracted through Pennrose Development to William Way LGBT Community Center. William Way has one Senior Services Director who coordinates with an onsite Supportive Services Director at Pennrose. One property manager is onsite full time. William Way has staff onsite two days a week and a medical case manager from Action Wellness onsite one day per week. There is an array of community programming onsite including friendly visitor programs, support groups, quarterly dance parties, tai chi classes, a gardening club, and self-led "rap" sessions where residents provide ongoing support to each other. Lavender Courtyard by Mutual Housing

SACRAMENTO

BACKGROUND

In 2012, local advocates founded a local LGBT organization which seeded a novel idea for California's capital city—to create a place for LGBT elders to age in dignity and in turn find a renewed sense of belonging. The focus quickly turned specifically toward LGBT elders with low incomes, who too often find themselves alone, struggling with housing insecurity and enduring discrimination, and who struggle to realistically afford a central city home.

PROJECT SNAPSHOT

- 53 units (49 one-bedroom and 4 two-bedroom units)
- Deeply affordable senior housing community, and intentionally welcoming to LGBT seniors
- Developed using 4% Low Income Housing Tax Credits, state tax credits, as well as funding through the City of Sacramento (HOME), State of California Multifamily Housing Program (MHP), Federal Home Loan Bank Affordable Housing Program (AHP), and The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation

Within the next year, this group of community leaders moved their vision forward in the hopes of adding a crucial missing ingredient to one the most racially and culturally diverse cities in the US. They soon learned about Mutual Housing California's own Sacramento-based history and mission to create inclusive, permanently affordable housing communities, and sought help to fully realize their vision. With over 30 years of experience, more than 1,000 units in their portfolio, and commitment to collaborative engagement of community members to shape each community's environment—a partnership with Mutual Housing quickly took shape.

Lack of state and local money during this time meant that funding sources were simply unavailable. Previous state bond funds were expended, California's state redevelopment funding was gone, and federal HOME allocations to local jurisdictions were only decreasing. Yet, during this same period the gap between the City's existing supply of affordable rental housing and the number of homes needed increased dramatically. The Stonewall generation of Sacramento's LGBT elders were facing homelessness in the fastest growing city in California. Though predevelopment may have temporarily paused, Mutual Housing quickly recommitted to the pursuit of this groundbreaking project for the region. Over the next three years, housing advocates and community members including Mutual Housing California CEO Roberto Jiménez, retired executive director Rachel Iskow and Sacramento LGBT Community Center executive director David Heitstuman met with city officials and Sacramento's first openly gay city councilmember Steve Hansen to discuss location and funding options for what would become Lavender Courtyard by Mutual Housing. A vacant lot was identified and purchased within councilmember Hansen's district. Then, Mutual Housing's seasoned and savvy housing development team hit the accelerator—aggressively competing for appropriate funding opportunities. In 2018, California voters approved Prop 1 which once again created State of California Multifamily Housing Program opportunities, ending a lengthy dry spell that had led to the highest rates of homelessness in the country. In April 2020, after years of passionate support and staff dedication the last piece of the funding puzzle was secured in the form of State low-income housing tax credit and bond allocations.

Once construction begins in Fall 2020, out of the ashes of a once blighted lot in the now gentrified Lavender Heights neighborhood will arise Lavender Courtyard by Mutual Housing—the Central Valley's first LGBT-welcoming affordable senior housing community. The community will be comprised of 53 one- and two-bedroom apartments, nearly half of which are specifically designated for seniors coming out of homelessness. The service provider, Lutheran Social Services of Northern California, also works closely with Mutual Housing at another housing community with permanent supportive housing units in the North Highlands area of Sacramento. In addition to LSS, Mutual Housing is working with the Sacramento LGBT Center, and its own community development department to engage the community in designing custom services to suit the needs of this community. Mutual Housing is looking forward to starting the next chapter in this inclusive housing community where LGBT elders are welcomed, affirmed and benefit from social supports that others experience from extended family networks. Mutual Housing also firmly believes it has a key role to play in bridging green and digital divides through including solar technologies and digital literacy in their communities, elevating resident voice in civic activities, and clearing obstacles to utilizing service and amenities often unavailable to affordable housing such as public transit, accessibility-minded laundry and waste service, and in-home high speed internet service.

Located in the heart of the State Capital, at the southeast corner of 16th and F streets in Sacramento, the building has private equity investment obtained through the syndication of state and federal low income housing tax credits and State Multifamily Housing Program (MHP) funds under California's 2018 proposition 1 affordable housing bond. The critical funding source arrived when the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation of Owings, Md., granted Lavender Courtyard $2.5 million and closed the funding gap. The City of Sacramento delivered $1.9 million in funding from its HOME program, administered locally by the Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency. The Federal Home Loan Bank Affordable Housing Program (AHP) is providing $520,000 in funding support. U.S. Bank is providing a $19.2 million construction loan while NeighborWorks Capital provided an $800,000 acquisition loan. Enterprise Community Partners is the tax credit investor.

Service Provider Mission: In the 1990s, Lutheran Social Services of Northern California (LSS) was one of the first faith-based agencies in San Francisco to respond to the AIDS crisis and began providing case management services in permanent supportive housing sites. Its mission is to promote stability and honor the dignity of those they serve by providing supportive housing services that lead to self-sufficiency. LSS envisions that the communities they support will have hope, stability, and a path to self-sufficiency.

Service Approach: Mutual Housing embeds a community builder staff within each of its communities to support residents in having agency to shape the place they call home. All residents are regularly engaged to foster inclusion in decision-making activities around community partnerships to enhance residents' self-determined quality of life and to promote leadership opportunities. For the 24 households coming out of homelessness, holistic supportive services will be provided in the form of case management and onsite office spaces for LSS staff. Additionally, the Sacramento LGBT Center is located a few blocks away providing greater connection to community resources and the greater Sacramento LGBT community. Midtown Association, which manages the Midtown Property Business Improvement District, expanded its boundaries in 2020 to include the Lavender Courtyard property. While providing streetscape and other placemaking capital improvements to the surrounding area, their business support will help increase resident safety and allow Mutual Housing to invest more in its onsite community development work. Onsite programs will include supplemental food distribution and other health-enriching programs, digital literacy workshops, and social well-being programs that support cultural competency and reduce isolation. General funding support of Mutual Housing community development for Lavender Courtyard is primarily through the operating budget for Mutual Housing staff.

SAN FRANCISCO

BACKGROUND

Strong partnership can be pointed to as a key ingredient for success of Openhouse and Mercy Housing, California's Laguna Residences. The concept, which was born more than 20 years ago with the leadership of Dr. Marcy Adelman along with other concerned residents about the future needs of LGBT aging older people, came to fruition in March of 2017 with the grand opening of 55 Laguna. The subsequent opening of the building at 95 Laguna in 2019 named after the Openhouse founder completed this large-scale and impressive project. In August 2012, the San Francisco Planning Commission unanimously approved the plans for Openhouse's development. Construction began in late 2014 and has been successful in large part due to the cross sector support of University of California, San Francisco (UCSF), local, county and state government partners. The mutually beneficial relationship established by Mercy Housing and Openhouse has proven extremely fruitful from collaborating around design (ensuring architects had considerable expertise in the needs of aging older people) to a generous sharing of duties and developer's fees. This partnership which is rooted in a shared mission and value structure has made the process a positive one for Openhouse who feels having a member of their board who is also a former Mercy Housing, California staff person helped significantly in bridging any divides in understanding of the development process.

Service Approach: From the Bob Ross Senior Service Center at 65 Laguna and the Openhouse Community Center at 75 Laguna, Openhouse provides support for San Francisco's community of LGBTQ seniors, and offers resources, services and community building activities to help all residents live health and independent lives. Included in these services are an onsite Resident Services Coordinator (funded by Mercy Housing, California), case management services, health and wellness support, and community activities. Additional service coordination and service delivery is provided through relationships with the San Francisco Department of Aging and an array of service providers throughout the Bay Area.

Openhouse has created a unique partnership with On Lok to create innovative programs for LGBTQ seniors most at risk. On Lok is a senior care provider known for developing the Program for All-Inclusive Care of the Elderly (PACE) which is a nation-wide model that helps seniors at risk of nursing home placement remain in the community. On Lok and Openhouse plan to open one of the nation's first social day programs developed with and for the LGBTQ community at the Openhouse Community Center. Anticipated future services could include dementia focused programming and possibly more technology-driven programming given the increased technology proficiency of younger segments of the Baby Boomer generation.

North Park Seniors

SAN DIEGO

BACKGROUND

North Park Seniors is San Diego's first LGBT-affirming affordable senior housing – one of a handful across the country, resulting from over a decade of advocacy. Open to all, North Park Seniors provides an affirming and supportive community for LGBT seniors. The San Diego LGBT Community Center (The Center) provides supportive services to all residents.

In 2011, The Center produced a study called LGBT San Diego's Trailblazing Generation to examine housing and related needs of LGBT seniors. The study found that many LGBT seniors suffer from fears

PROJECT SNAPSHOT

- Completed in 2017
- 76 units (7 studios, 66 one-bedroom, 3 two-bedroom)
- Income restricted with all units being 60% and below Area Median Income (AMI)
- All residents must be 55 and older

- Located near transportation, rapid bus line, regional bike corridor, shopping, restaurants, healthcare and job centers of increasing social isolation, lack of access to culturally competent health and social services, and lack of access to safe, affordable and affirming housing options. The study recommended that the LGBT community seek an affordable housing developer willing to partner in producing LGBT senior inclusive housing. This was the beginning of the collaboration and partnership between Community HousingWorks and The Center on this development.

Community HousingWorks designed and entitled North Park Seniors as the affordable portion of a 194 unit, transit-oriented, mixed-income development. CHW engaged a major residential developer to build out the 118 market-rate portion. CHW's creative interpretation of density bonus incentives created more affordable apartments on the combined site, an interpretation that was later adopted into local law.

The San Diego Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Community Center, Inc., (d.b.a., The Center) is one of the largest and most vibrant LGBT community centers in the nation. Functioning as the San Diego LGBT community's anchor organization, The Center is led by a 11-member board of directors, employs more than 75 paid staff and utilizes more than 1,200 community volunteers to achieve its twin goals of promoting LGBT health/wellness and human rights. The Center provides targeted programs and services to the full diversity of the San Diego LGBTQ community, including men, women, youth, seniors, transgender and nonbinary individuals, families, LGBTQ Latina/o/x community members and their families, and those living with HIV. Last year, The Center provided more than 84,600 direct service visits to San Diego community members, and through its events, activities and advocacy, touched the lives of thousands more.

Service Approach: Toward the goal of optimal wellness while aging, the Center offers residents and community members on-site programming and social engagement opportunities. These include: case management for supportive housing-based program seniors, and social service support; engagement in culturally relevant health and wellness seminars; exercise and fitness programs; recreational activities that diminish social isolation; employment assistance; legal/ advocacy services; and a range of cultural and educational programs including art, writing, and computer skills and financial literacy, in coordination with Community HousingWorks.

The San Diego LGBT Center staff has worked to build new collaborative partnerships with outside resources to deliver services for our North Park Seniors residents, including Age Well/Live Well County of San Diego, SDG&E Outreach Services, and the San Diego Food Bank

The Ariadne Getty Foundation Senior Housing

LOS ANGELES

BACKGROUND

For more than 50 years, the Los Angeles LGBT Center has been the world's largest provider of programs and services to LGBT people. In 2019 the Center opened its two-acre, intergenerational Anita May Rosenstein Campus, which houses the Henry & Jeanette Weinberg Senior Center and The Ariadne Getty Foundation Youth Academy, to provide programs and services for seniors and youth, respectively. Phase II of the Campus, slated to open in December 2020, will include a 98-unit affordable housing complex known as

The Ariadne Getty Foundation Senior Housing. The Center partnered with Thomas Safran & Associates as the developer and property manager of the Campus' senior housing.

Approximately 65,000 LGBTQ older people live in Los Angeles, of whom 68% live alone. By 2030, the number is expected to more than double. They also face higher rates of poverty: more than half of the Center's 6,000 registered senior clients live on less than $2,000 a month. The Ariadne Getty Foundation Senior Housing, located adjacent to the Center's Harry & Jeanette Weinberg Senior Center in order to give residents direct access to the Senior Services department, will help to address these issues and provide affordable housing desperately needed for low-income and formerly homeless seniors. Additionally, 25 units of permanent supportive housing for homeless seniors and those at high-risk of homelessness will be subsidized by the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services (DHS) Housing for Health division.

Designed as a contemporary, five-story stucco building, its 98 units will feature 19 studios, 75 one-bedrooms, 3 two-bedrooms, and a two-bedroom manager's unit. The project will have a well-designed outdoor space with landscaped areas and pathways.

Also housed within the Campus is the Center's innovative Culinary Arts program, a 300-hour culinary education taught in a commercial kitchen to youth experiencing homelessness and seniors. The students prepare more than 600 meals daily to feed the Center's youth and senior clients; they will help to operate a café which is scheduled to open in 2020.

Lessons Learned

SAGE conducted interviews with more than 20 LGBT service providers, developers, and property managers around the country representing these eleven communities, to provide perspective on key takeaways from their experiences in developing LGBT-affirming housing. In each of these developments there were several opportunities and challenges. Below are some reoccurring themes that emerged throughout these interviews.

PARTNERSHIPS

Several interviewees highlighted the importance of the partnerships they developed and of selecting partner agencies that not only have expertise in development and/or services but also have a shared similar mission and values around providing safe, welcoming housing to LGBT older people.

In San Francisco, Openhouse highlighted this in the development of both Laguna residences. The partnership it developed over the course of several years with Mercy Housing California resulted in a successful, historic “gut rehab”—everything in each building is new with the exception of the actual framed structure itself. Due to this strong partnership, Openhouse has the desire to continue building upon this great work knowing that they have the support and expertise of a similarly mission focused organization.

The Center on Halsted in Chicago echoed similar sentiments in the partnership it has built with Heartland Alliance. Understanding Heartland Alliance’s deep history in providing permanent supportive housing to the city’s most vulnerable residents has provided a space that has encouraged all parties involved to embrace innovation in programming and recognize the interconnectedness of property management and service delivery for ultimate housing stability and tenant success.

Resources

SAGE has produced an online directory of developers to provide a starting point for discussions by specific geographic area around creating LGBT-affirming older adult housing.

Visit www.sageusa.org/lgbthousing

AFFIRMATIVE MARKETING

Given the deep-rooted and institutional discrimination that the LGBT community has faced, every project sponsor interviewed called out the importance of affirmative marketing. While restricting the renting or selling of units to only LGBT people can violate fair housing laws, using marketing techniques to encourage LGBT and LGBT allies to apply can be very effective.

Examples of affirmative marketing include making explicit that harassment will not be tolerated; staff are properly trained to work with older LGBT people; and, that onsite programming includes LGBT-focused activities. Additionally, advertising in areas that reach LGBT older people is another way to ensure LGBT elders know to apply. Information sessions at LGBT centers, LGBT-affirming churches and congregations and, increased advertisements in LGBT publications all help to increase outreach to LGBT older people. As the property manager at Spirit on Lake recounted one resident saying, “After years of discrimination, the points of these developments is not to exclude others but rather to create an environment where all are welcomed and affirmed as a part of a larger community.”

ENDURANCE

The development process is lengthy and laborious. Affordable housing often has multiple layers of financing that take a great deal of time to assemble and public financing sources are extremely competitive. At Triangle Square in Los Angeles, multiple sources of financing were utilized. The housing developer—McCormick Baron Salazar—worked to tie housing subsidies from various federal housing programs to assist in affordability as well as blending the equity from the Low Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC) Program into its development stream. The project was made possible by the city of Los Angeles donating the land on which the development was built.

It is also common for a project to fail in receiving LIHTC financing on its first round of a proposal submission. In some cases, such as in Minneapolis with Spirit on Lake, it took several rounds of submissions and multiple years before they received their tax credit award. While this can be frustrating, LIHTCs provide anywhere between 40-60% of the capital costs and equity needed to construct affordable housing. The patience and endurance of project sponsors to “stay the course” and not lose sight of their end goal is critical to a project’s ultimate success.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT DURING DEVELOPMENT

Engaging the community where a project is being developed during the feasibility phase as well as throughout the process is critical to success. Every project sponsor spoke about the importance of community engagement. In New York City, SAGE engaged existing local residents of the Ingersoll public housing community as well as surrounding residents and stakeholders, hosted community meetings and even helped sponsor local neighborhood basketball tournaments to build goodwill and demonstrate what it means to be a good neighbor. Other groups hosted listening sessions with local residents, focus groups with potential residents and ongoing resident surveys to help develop the array of available services. It is clear that providers and developers can only properly assess the housing and service needs of surrounding community by engaging its residents. This also build trust and credibility over the long term.

COMMUNITY BUILDING AFTER COMPLETION

Once a project is completed it is only the beginning of building “community” within the development itself. Engaging residents around the types of services they will find valuable and being intentional around creating an environment for residents to engage with one another is critical in establishing long term success for project sponsors of any development. In Philadelphia, the William Way LGBT Center as well as their partners—dmhFund and Pennrose Development—highlighted the importance of having their services be largely resident-led and self-directed.

The importance of residents taking an active interest in helping to create engagement strategies with each other helped to foster an environment of active learning on the part of property management and services providers. In addition, project sponsors for Spirit on Lake pointed to the importance of community building for residents given their diverse mixture of cultures. The community is largely LGBT older elders and East African families of Muslim faith. Residents actively communicated the importance to them of creating a welcoming environment where all are embraced. This has been demonstrated repeatedly through creating educational programming on the Muslim faith, LGBT cultural competency, as well as social opportunities like potlucks where residents cooked their favorite dishes and shared them with one another to learn more about each other’s cultures.

BUILDING DESIGN SPECIFICS

Taking into consideration the special needs of aging people is imperative when developing housing for elders. In New York City, SAGE took special consideration to hire an interior architect with a specific background in gerontology. This resulted in considerations such as wider hallways and rounded corners to avoid injuries to residents. Other considerations included larger community spaces for social activities and engagement. In Philadelphia, the sponsors identified that having a full kitchen on the main level so that residents could cook together for resident potlucks would have been optimal. At the LA LGBT Center's Triangle Square, there is community space on each floor and a larger community room on the main floor. This provides opportunities for engagement with neighbors in more intimate communal social areas. The Anita May Rosenstein Campus provides an environment for intergenerational programming while still giving each cohort their own individual communities of peers to engage with on a regular basis

EFFECTIVE DATA USE

Market studies are driven by data, which are key tools used in feasibility analysis and to demonstrate need in communities where new affordable housing projects are being sited. It is also critical to utilize data on an ongoing basis to understand the outcomes and effectiveness of these projects around key indicators such as housing stability, health outcomes, and quality of life for residents. San Francisco's Openhouse is actively engaging in the use of data at its Laguna projects. Openhouse intends to continue working with Mercy Housing California to ensure that data collection and evaluation of housing and health outcomes is a central component of its work, which will help to inform future programming for LGBT older people. Chicago's Center on Halsted shared this sentiment and is engaged with its partner Heartland Alliance as part of a larger data evaluation of five buildings that Heartland Alliance owns and manages in the Chicago metro area. This data is planned to assist in refining programming and developing resident retention strategies.

Conclusion

The U.S. is on the precipice of the largest growth in its aging older adult population in U.S. history. Communities are just beginning to fully understand the implications this will place on existing housing and service resources. Estimates predict that the LGBT elder population will surge to more than 7 million by 2030. With this surge comes an increased need for safe, affordable LGBT-affirming housing communities. The options for such housing differ in approach and cost, but each provides a sense of dignity and safety for LGBT community members. How communities choose to respond to this growth will determine a great deal around how LGBT aging older people live, access services, and develop community supports for generations to come.
